

Hanmi Gallery London is dedicated to showcasing and promoting contemporary Korean and East Asian art to local and international audiences. With a second gallery space in Seoul, which features the works of British and European artists, it aims to foster a cross-cultural dialogue between Eastern and Western contemporary art.

Since its first opening in London in 2011, the gallery has focused on new media and interdisciplinary artistic practices; it represents emerging and established video, performance and new media artists, supporting their development and enhancing their visibility in present-day visual culture.

The gallery has also successfully run programmes of seminars, art talks, workshops and projects engaging with public audiences. Hanmi Gallery London is currently under refurbishment, and is thrilled to open its newly renovated gallery space with an inaugural exhibition in September 2018.
